

Professional but caring career advice

Dear [Friend's Name],

I know you've been debating about which career direction to take, and I wanted to share my honest advice with you. It's important to choose a path that not only pays the bills but also aligns with your strengths and passions. Money is important, but fulfillment matters just as much. Think about the skills you enjoy using most and the kind of impact you want to have. Do you feel more energized when working with people, solving problems, or creating something new? Your answer will help point you toward the right career.

Remember, no decision is final. You can always adjust along the way. Don't let fear of making the wrong choice hold you back from moving forward.

Always here for you,

[Your Name]

Get more templates here: <https://www.lettersandtemplates.com/letters/advice-letter-to-a-friend>