

Sorry Message for Damaged Item

Hey [Husband's Name],

I messed up big time, and I need to come clean about something. Remember that vintage guitar your dad gave you? Well... I accidentally knocked it over while cleaning, and the neck cracked. I know how much that guitar means to you, and I feel absolutely terrible about it.

I was trying to surprise you by organizing the music room, and I got careless. I should have been more careful around your precious things, especially something with so much sentimental value. I know it's not just about the money – it's about the memories and the connection to your father.

I've already contacted three guitar repair shops to get quotes on fixing it. I found a specialist who works on vintage instruments, and he thinks it can be restored to almost perfect condition. I want to cover all the costs, and I won't take no for an answer on this.

I also understand if you're upset with me. I'd be furious if someone broke something irreplaceable that belonged to me. But please know it was a complete accident, and I'm going to do everything I can to make it right.

Can we talk about this when you get home? I promise to be more careful in the future, and maybe we can figure out a better way to organize your music stuff together.

I love you, and I'm really, really sorry.

[Your Name]
