Hey Birthday Girl!

Congratulations on surviving another year without me having to bail you out of jail! That's got to be some kind of record.

I was trying to think of the perfect gift for you, but then I realized you already have the best gift of all – me as your sibling. You're welcome for that daily blessing in your life.

Remember when we used to fight over who was Mom's favorite? Well, now that we're older, I think we can both agree that it was obviously the dog. But hey, at least we're tied for second place!

I hope your birthday is filled with cake, laughter, and the realization that you're still not as awesome as me (but you're getting close). Just kidding – you're pretty incredible, even if you do have questionable taste in siblings.

Here's to another year of you pretending to be the mature one while I remind everyone of all your embarrassing childhood stories. It's what sisters are for!

Happy birthday, you wonderful weirdo. Love you to the moon and back (but not to Saturn because that's just showing off).

Your amazingly humble and modest sibling,

[Your Name]

P.S. – I already told Mom you're paying for dinner tonight. You're welcome for the birthday surprise!
