

Thank You for Volunteering - Consider Donating Too

Hi [Volunteer Name],

I wanted to personally thank you for [specific volunteer activity: canvassing last Saturday, making phone calls, hosting the house party]. Volunteers like you are the heart of this campaign, and I'm grateful for your time and energy.

I know you've already given so much, but I'm writing to ask if you might also consider making a financial contribution. I wouldn't ask if it weren't important.

The truth is, while volunteer power is irreplaceable, we also need resources to [print the literature you're distributing, rent the office space where you're making calls, buy the digital ads that complement your door-knocking].

If you can afford to donate $[amount] - even just $[smaller amount] - it would make a tremendous difference. Every dollar helps us reach more voters and support volunteers like you with the tools you need.

Donate here: [link]

Whether you contribute financially or not, please know how much I appreciate everything you're doing for this campaign.

With deep gratitude,

[Candidate Name]

Get more templates here: <https://www.lettersandtemplates.com/letters/campaign-fundraising-letter>